WAS SURPRISED.

WAS SURPRISED.

A celebrated European traveler, while in 8t. Louis recently, was escorted through one of the large shoe factories for which that city is famous, and was greatly astonished at what he saw.

The old way of making shoes, in which one man started and completed the shoe, has entirely changed. Now each operator does just one part toward completing the shoe, and in going from the cutter to the finisher's hands the shoe is handled by 60 different people, one half of whom are girls. The gentleman interviewed several of the operators and found that in manufacturing high grade shoes, such as is made by the Pesnevers Shoe Co., that only the best help is employed, and they receive correspondingly high wages.

The gentleman had seen these goods in all the large cities in this country, and was not surprised to learn that the firm is supplying fine shoes to 3,600 large dealers. He carried away a pair of their shoes with him as a mements of his visit, and is now advising his friends to hay no other.

as a memento of his visit, and is now ad-vising his friends to buy no other.

THE FARMING WORLD.

ABOUT FEEDING CALVES. important Points Which Are Cicriooked

by Many Dalrymen.

"Certainly no one will deny that it is wrong to fatten a dairy beifer," says a writer in Country Gentleman. "Is it not wrong to starve them? The mafority of farmers are not willing 18 overfeed their culves, because it is expensiver but if they see an article saying enives must be kept thin, and fed on coarse fodder to develop the digestive organs, surely they will have an excuse for misling thin, weak calves and cows having impaired constitutions, Do not think it is to be understood that a highly concentrated ration, strong in fat, is recommended, as that is as wrong as the short ration. It would seem, if the young calf is required to consume large quantities of coarse food to get the necessary quartity of nutriments some of the organs will be overtaxed and others will be undeveloped. Regarding a calf having a large stomach, or, what is vulgarly termed a 'pot belly, it will almost invariably be found to have a small, poorly developed chest and heart girth. In reference to this last your correspondent surely has, in judging, overlooked this vitally important point. "All animals are in the natural state smaller than these which have been domesticated, and the tendency is to grow smaller in the hands of breeders; herefore, it seems logical to try and keep size, health and constitution, but always having production in view. An example might be made by taking two beifers from the same class of dams. both physically equa; at birth; one to be fed on a nitrogenous, properly balanced ration, to grow fast, produce bone and muscle to be fully developed and able to produce a strong calf when two years old; the other fetl on coarse. son-nutritive foldier, to be alway weak and under-sized, that when two years of age would be of a yearling size. Now the question is, which will prove the better dairy and breeding unimal to reproduce her species, and also prove of value in the dairy? Does any herd improve where the young stock are neglected? Most breeders lave bred for an object, production sacrificing size and constitution; the esuit being that soon their goal, preduction, is also lost Go slow, and breed for all points; in the future they will be required more than at present."

SPOTTED COWBANE. Short Description of One of Our Most Deadly Plants.

year cases of the poisoning of children from cating "wild parsnips" are chronicled by the papers. many people are ignorant of the harmful nature of the plant, it may be well to describe it. Spotted cowbens (Cicuta maculata) is a member of the parsley family. It is a weed of the damp mendow and brookside. It is a perential, with a purple stem, white flowers, slender habit and a pungent. aromatic odor. The stems spring from thick, fleshy, underground roots which are usually three or five in number, though single specimens are also found. The roots of spotted cowhane will ffeet man, cattle and horses, and for this reason they should be grubbed out from the farm as soon as recognized. The symptoms of poisoning by cowbane are: Pain in the bowels, vomiting, followed by violent convulsions, dilation of the pupils, frothing at the mouth, and death. Cowhate is generally mistaken for wild parsnips, but the two are really quite different, though belonging to the same family. The genune wild parsnip is a biennial, of a tall. stout habit, with deeply grooved stem, and bears large clusters of yellow flowrs. It is also of an acrid, poisonous by cooking. Like the cowbane, it Tribune. should be dug out wherever found.

Tobacco as an Inserticide. "For some years I have been using and recommending tobacco dust as an ail round insect destroyer," says Joseph Mechan, in the Practical Farmer. "I have used it in the greenhouse for lice (aphis), in the open ground for the encumber beetle, plant lice and for worms of all kinds, and sometimes in the benhouse for lice, etc. It is surely one of the swiftest of all insecticides we can apply. I have usually applied it with the bare hand, scattering it rather freely over bushes and plants and around encumber, melon and squash vines, even an inch deep on Cure for Scours in Calces. We have tried pretty nearly every thing in times past as a cure for scours in calves, which, try as we will, are sometimes unavoidable where it is not possible for one person to do the feeding every time. Even one over-feeding will sometimes cause the mischief to start. Last spring raw eggs were fed, three or four times a day, to a calf which everything else had failed to relieve. She soon gained strength. She could not get up alone at first, and the disease was checked. To-dry the calf is as strong as any. Very little milk is fed while giving the eggs. - Colman's Rural World.

Experiments as to Butter.

German experiments, confirmed by French tests, have demonstrated that the feeding of cows has no effect on the proportion of butter in the dry to the promoters of the proposed Namatter of milk. Cows of the same breed and fed in the same way will vary in their yield of butter between a kilogram from 20 litres of milk and one from 32 litres. The conclusion reached is that, making due allowance for the stage of lactation, for the daily yield of milk, and the breed, the individual peculiarity of the cow is the most important factor in the production of butter.

THE DRUG CLERK'S STORY

He Talks of Handashes had Nerv. ousness and Gives a Curb for Both.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

It was the drug clerk's turn to tell a story of one of his experiences, and the reporter, expecting samething good, as usual, settled himself comfortably in a chair, prepared to give his undivided attention to the speaker. The latter was Henry Meist, Who resides with his patents on Aqueduct Street, Newark, N. J., and who hands out medicine over the counter of Dr. Andrew F. Burkhardt, the counter of Dr. Andrew F. Burkhardt's the counter of Dr. Andrew F. Burkhardt's drug store at 271 Orange Street, this city.

"Perhaps I can do nothing better," he began, "than to tell you the Secret of my good health. It is it story that I have told to many recently, and as it resulted in good in each case, it may be worth your while to listen to it. To begin with, I was not all-ways strong and robust, as I am now. Long hours of work and hard study had left me in a wretched condition. Frightful, lingering headaches found me a randy victim, and at times I was at hervous that the dropping of a pin would cause me to give a victim start, and then I would be selzed with a fit of trembling that was, to put it mildly, exceedingly bothersome. Well, I began to doctor myself. Now I flatter myself that I know something of medicine; but with all my knowledge, I could find nothing that would cure those terrible headaches or put an end to my nervousness. When I picked up a bottle my hand would shake as though I had the chills, and if it was a powder that I was handling I stood a good chance of sprinkling it all over these block tropsers. Things went from bad to worse, and I soot realized that a man of my physical condition had better not attempt to mix medicine.

"Try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, said Dr. Burkhardt one day; and as you know the doctor's advice is always worth following, I got the Pink Pills and began to take them. Aladdin's lamp never performed the wonders of these pills. Would you believe it! How about my nervousness? Well, the pills put an end to that with almost startling abruptness. You see I knew enough about the business to appreciate the importance of following the prescribing physician's directions, and by paying strict attention to those given by Dr. Williams with each box of his Pink Pills, I was soon another fellow. Lack at the now! A picture of health, the! Well, that is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do for a man, or a woman, either. See, I can hold this glass of water out now without spilling a drop, but I couldn't do that two months ago and—"What is it, na'm!" he asked as a heatly dressed woman came up to the counter. "A box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." "Yes, ma'm, fifty cents, please. Thank you." "These Pink Pills are great things," said Mr. Maier as he turned to the reporter again, and the latter, after allhe had heard, thought so too.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physleal ills, which vanish before proper ef-forts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts-rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs. promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its bene-ficial effects, to note when you parchase, that you have the genuine arti-cle, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians. but if in need of a laxative, should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.
